

PROGRAMME

UNIVERSITY OF EDINBURGH POSTGRADUATE RUSSIAN STUDIES CONFERENCE.

15TH OCTOBER, 2010

- 0830-0910 Registration, coffee and welcome
- 0910-1100 Panel: Ideology and literature
Jekaterina Shulga, University College, London: The Nature of Testimony: Remembering Trauma in Vasily Grossman's Everything Flows
- Margarita Vaysman, University of Oxford: Ideology and Narrative Patterns in the Works of Nikolay Chernyshevsky and William Godwin
- Ivana Peruško, Zagreb University: Ideology and Persecution: Literary Cases of Mihail Bulgakov and Maksim Gorky
- Dmitry Shatalov, University of Oxford: The Ideological Genesis of Russian Conceptual Metaphors for Translation
- 1100-1130 Coffee break
- 1130-1300 Panel: Ideology and the People
Jonathan Waterlow, University of Oxford: Whose (Party) Line is it anyway? Ideology and the Soviet Population of the 1930s
- Normal Prell, University of Aberdeen: The Workings of Ideology between Empire and Nation State in the 19th Century Russia and their Impact on the Emergence of Russian Ethnography
- Michael Kogan, University of Toronto: Performing Soviet Democracy: Ideology and the Elections of Soviet Judges during Late Stalinism
- 1300-1400 Lunch
- 1400-1530 Panel: Ideology in the post-Soviet Space
Tatiana Gladkikh, University of Birmingham: Is Globalisation a New Ideology? The Role of the Global Business Environment in Shaping the Identities of Russian Business People
- Catherine Owen, University of Exeter: Democracy: Method and Meaning in Contemporary Russia
- Eleanor Bindman, University of Glasgow: Rejecting, Accepting or Re-interpreting "European" Values? The Russian Political Response to the EU's Policy on Human Rights in Russia.

- 1530-1550 Coffee Break
- 1550-1650 Panel: Ideology Abroad
Tatjana Fenicia, University of Trier: "In Russia we have been Germans, in Germany we are Russians" The Situation of Russian Migrants in Germany
- Ammon Cheskin, University of Glasgow The Uses and Abuses of the "Russian Diaspora": Russian Foreign Policy and the Baltic States' Domestic Policies in Context
- 1650-1730 Introduction to and keynote address by Doctor Iain Lauchlan, Lecturer in European History
- 1730-1930 Reception